Satanic Infection

by Bob Glaze

There seems to be no rhyme or reason to what is happening in this world today. Most Americans are sick and tired of hearing about COVID-19 and wish for news about what is really going on behind the scenes. We are having “longer than usual wait times” on calls to Social Security and health insurance, which is an understatement; most of the time you're cut off. A call to the passport office will tell you that they are all on furlough and to call back after the pandemic is over, just to hear that another is in the wings. Since the fear of everyone over COVID-19 seems to be subsiding, we get news that another more potent virus is on the way. This has been forecast since 2016—how did they know unless it was planned and someone is in charge. Don't get me wrong, I know that the virus is dangerous, and people are dying. My question is, was this virus contrived? If it is contrived then who is benefiting from it?

Whether contrived or not, it is being used by the New World Order to bring about the wanted results of depopulating the inhabitants of the earth. One of the organizations that originated this idea is the Club of Rome. While many believe this to be a benign organization made of idle idealists, their thoughts and projections are being subscribed to by many one-world leaders. The Club divided the earth into ten regions, much like the the ten kings of Revelation 17:12: “And the ten horns which thou sawest are ten kings, which have received no kingdom as yet; but receive power as kings one hour with the beast.”

The Club of Rome was the result of “The Conference on Conditions of World Order” held on June 12–19, 1965, on Rockefeller's estate in Bellagio, Italy. It was sponsored by Congress for Cultural Freedom, an organization opposed to the Soviet form of communism. It was to define the concepts of world order.

It was decided that the earth could not sustain the present growth rate. In order to accomplish the goals of mankind, the earth had to be restricted to a certain population. The goal for the United States was to be reduced to 100 million. It is now estimated that the population of the earth will be 7.6 billion by the year 2050. This according, to the Club of Rome, is unsustainable. The organization has published several books stating their case.

The Club is alive and well in 2020. In a book by authors Ernst von Weizsaecker and Anders Wijkman entitled Come On! Capitalism, Short-termism, Population and the Destruction of the Planet—A Report to the Club of Rome (2018), warns that the current worldwide trends are not sustainable (www.clubofrome.org). It states that the world may need a “new enlightenment.” In other words, the world cannot wait until the population reaches the 7.6 billion forecasted; it must act now.

Can the reduction of the population on earth be accomplished, and how can it be implemented? There have been many accusations of how the AIDS virus spread so quickly to become a worldwide plague. Was it man-made, or did it come from monkeys or other animals? If so, why did it not show up centuries ago? Was HIV/AIDS a natural phenomenon or planned genocide? According to sources, AIDS was contrived in labs in the United States. It seemed that the Defense Department's Biological Warfare Unit wanted a new virus that had no defense.

In the 1972 Bulletin of the U.N.'s World Health Organization (WHO), we read:

“An attempt should be made to see if viruses can in fact exert selective effects on immune function. The possibility should be looked into that the immune response to the virus itself may be impaired if the inflicting virus damages, more or less selectively, the cell responding to the virus.”

—“Virus Associated Immunopathology: Animal models and implications for human disease,” vol 47, no 2, pg 259

In 1975, Dr. Robert Gallo and eight other scientists (working at the Bethesda Cancer Research Center in Maryland) had been working to modify the genetic structure of the virus so that it could be more easily transmitted. That same year, after Fort Detrick had become demilitarized, the newly established Frederick Cancer Research Facility was placed under the direction of the Bethesda Cancer Research Center where Gallo was the director. One investigation revealed that in March 1976, a special federal government virus development program began producing the AIDS virus, and it was headed by Dr. Gallo and Dr. Novakhatskiy of the Ivanosku Institute in Russia. Gallo would later be investigated and found guilty of scientific misconduct, but President Clinton pardoned him.

In response to the charges that AIDS was developed as a military biological warfare weapon, in February 1987, Col. David Huxsoll (U.S. Army) said: “Studies at army laboratories have shown that the AIDS virus would be an extremely poor biological warfare agent.” He later denied saying it.

Dr. Robert Strecker, a practicing gastroenterologist with a Ph.D. in pharmacology, who was hired as a consultant to work on a healthcare proposal for Security Pacific Bank, said: “I don’t think there is any doubt that AIDS is a man-made problem. The question is whether it was created either accidentally or intentionally. I believe the AIDS virus was requested, predicted, produced, and deployed” (www.modernhistoryproject.org).

Is it possible that we are reviewing past goals, but with new names, namely COVID-19? Is it a natural phenomenon, or is it man-made with the goal of reducing the earth’s human population? Was it created in a lab, or does it come from animals such as snakes or bats offered for human consumption in the wet markets in Wuhan, China?

WHO spokeswoman Fadela Chaib had this to say: “All available evidence suggests the virus has an animal origin and is not manipulated or a constructed virus in a lab or somewhere else in comments obtained by Fox News.” Was the COVID-19 virus chosen as another way to reduce the earth’s human population? The World Health Organization has been blamed for not notifying the world of the existing virus and giving out an immediate notification and warning of the outbreak, natural or manmade. Are they complicit? President Trump believes they are.

The United States taxpayers fund the WHO with $400 to $500 million dollars per year. Because of the failure to alert the U.S., the WHO was penalized 50% of their U.S. funding. President Trump was criticized by Bill Gates, who accounts for 10 percent of the WHO donations. After the reduction by President Trump, Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation donated an additional $150 million to fight COVID-19, some of which was to the WHO.

Are Bill and Melinda part of the problem or part of the solution? It has been circulated that Bill Gates is responsible for the pandemic and will aid in installing biochips in every human as a way of tracking them. We know chipping is being done in some countries, but will Bill Gates use his money and power to make it happen worldwide? What he did say was, “Eventually we will have some digital certificates to show who has recovered or been tested recently or when we have a vaccine who have received it” (www.buzzfeednews.com). Could actually be interpreted to mean biochips?

Satan has infected mankind with rebellion against God. This is called sin. We know from Scripture that we are experiencing the end of this age as we know it. Soon the Lord will return and remove all Christians from this world and soon after the “Wrath” will begin. One of the signs of the end of this age in Matthew 24:7 is “pestilence.” COVID-19 is a pestilence.

The repeated warnings about contracting this unseen pestilence has paralyzed the countries of the world to a point of stopping food production as sure as a famine. This fear has stopped manufacturing, travel, medical practice, church, and even family get-togethers. Even the threat of nuclear war during the Cold War never accomplished a withdrawal from society. Even most Christians that I know have become part of the fear-mongering.

We are encouraged some 365 times in Scripture not to succumb to fear. Fear paralyzes. We are encouraged to not fear but to have faith in God. Revelation 2:10 addresses the church of Smyrna: “Fear none of those things which thou shalt suffer: behold, the devil shall cast some of you into prison, that ye may be tried; and ye shall have tribulation ten days: be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life.”

The elite of this world believe that they hold the future of the earth in their hands. However, Satan is delighted with them for thinking that they have a future part in ruling the earth. Those that accept the mark of the beast, along with these future ten kings who only rule for a very short time period, will spend eternity in outer darkness. On the other hand, we as born-again believers in Jesus Christ will live for eternity in the light of the throne of God. We have His Word that we are safe in Him: “It is a faithful saying: For if we be dead with him, we shall also live with him: If we suffer, we shall also reign with him: if we deny him, he also will deny us: If we believe not, yet he abideth faithful: he cannot deny himself” (2 Timothy 2:11–13). “For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind” (2 Timothy 1:7).

'Til It's Safe: America's New Formula for National Destruction

by Pastor Larry Spargimino, Ph.D.

The coronavirus pandemic has brought to the surface a deep-seated national dread. It can be stated in three simple words: “Til It's Safe.” The lockdowns will continue, constitutional freedoms will be stepped on “ ‘til it's safe” to get back to living life.

Forget the fact that millions are out of work and businesses are closing down at a record rate, the lockdowns will continue until there is a cure for the coronavirus, vaccines are readily available, and we can be guaranteed by the medical community that our good health will be uninterrupted.

The mad pursuit of this impossibility in a fallen world is canceling out every other consideration. We are not balancing a reasonable concern for good health with dozens of other valid considerations. It now has become the only consideration.

Clearly, the coronavirus is not the only hazard we face. According to the National Institute of Mental Health, anxiety disorders are at epidemic levels. Some 50 million Americans are feeling the effects of panic attacks, phobias and other anxiety disorders. Billions are being spent on antidepressants, and millions more are being spooned off because of decreased productivity. The workforce is freaking out. A dark cloud of doom is settling over the nation.

There have been quarantines and lockdowns—perhaps a good idea at first, but now not everyone in the medical profession agrees. There are growing dissenting voices. It doesn't matter. Los Angeles mayor Eric Garcetti says the lockdowns will continue until the coronavirus is cured.

If you don't go along with the stay-alive hysteria, you'll be sorry. One single mother in Dallas, Texas, opened her beauty salon so that she and her eighteen employees could provide for their families. She was fined $7,000 and was also threatened with seven days incarceration in a facility from which sex offenders and convicted criminals were being released for fear that they might be exposed to the coronavirus! Another lady in Oregon opened her salon and has been fined $14,000!

Bill Maher, on his show “Real Time With Bill Maher” perceived the insanity in all of this and quipped, “We can't sanitize the universe. We've all read the articles—your sink contains 500,000 bacteria per square inch ... your toothbrush has feces on it, E. coli has been found in makeup. Carpets, bedding, the remote, cutting boards ... the average pillow has 350,000 bacteria colonies ... your cell phone has ten times the bacteria as your toilet, which your dog drinks out of and then licks you. ...”

Conservative commentator, Dennis Prager shows how impossible it is to live by this new dream.

I have never led my life on the basis of “until it's safe.” I do not take ridiculous risks. I wear a seatbelt whenever I'm in a car because the chances are overwhelming that in a bad accident, a seatbelt can save my life. But I get into the car which is not 100 percent safe. You are not on earth to be safe. You are on earth to lead a full life. I don't want my epitaph to be “He led a safe life.” It's like another epitaph I don't want: “He experienced as little pain as possible” (Fireside Chat).

Christians Are Also Caught Up in the Madness

Colossians 3:2–3 says, “Set your affection on things above, not on things on the earth. For ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God.” In case we miss the message, Jesus made it very clear: “Fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul” (Matt. 10:28). Tertullian, the second century church father, said: “The blood of the martyrs is the seed of the church.” But if we live by this new “save-your-skin” credo there will be no martyrs and no dynamic church.

The question for every Christian must be, Do we really believe Scripture? Or, are we betraying our testimony before a watching world by being dominated by fear like everyone else?

I can well understand why the world would live by the “until-it’s-safe” philosophy. If you are wedded to this earth and find materialism to be the only philosophy worth living by, then shudder, scream, and tremble. Some Christian leaders need to re-read and reapply Matthew 6:19–21. Their only treasure is on earth. But Jesus clearly warns us and says, “Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal. But lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven. ...”

Do we really believe this, or are we dangerously self-deceived and just playing church?

Those who want to play it safe will never follow Christ in the face of danger. “And he that taketh not his cross, and followeth after me, is not worthy of me. He that findeth his life shall lose it: and he that loseth his life for my sake shall find it” (Matt. 10:38–39). The play-it-safe crowd will go down in history as trembling apostates.

Matt Walsh has written a new book titled Church of Cowards (Regnery 2020). He talks about imagining “a heathen horde” who shows up ready to butcher some Christians. Looking about, they expect to find ample evidence of Christianity but they can’t find much evidence at all. They have heard of “Christian America,” and thought they would find the bold Christianity of the New Testament, and of the early days of bold Christian expansion. “Instead they find silly, shallow, oversexed, nihilistic zombies who live vicariously through their phones which they have stocked with photographs of their own faces. They find that modesty is mocked, discipline is scorned, and obedience is rejected on principle ... they find a church of cowards.”

Revelation 21:8 informs us of the character traits of those who will be kept out of the Holy City. Note carefully, the first characteristic: “But the fearful ... shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone.” “Fearful” does not mean those who have a fear of snakes and spiders, but rather “the cowardly,” those who want to wait “until it’s safe.”

“For God hath not given us the spirit of fear,” we read in 1 Timothy 2:7. Once again, this is not talking about those who have a fear of snakes and spiders, but rather “the cowardly.” We certainly are not to take unnecessary risks, but being a faithful Christian does involve risks. All you have to do is read the New Testament and the accounts of the martyrs. Our greatest danger is not the coronavirus, or any other earthly threat. Isn’t it time for our nation to press on, and for the church to exhibit the courage that God clearly expects?

Walsh relates a story of Egyptian Christians who were in buses headed to a monastery in the desert. Islamist militants boarded the buses and pulled the passengers out and asked them to abandon Christ and convert to Islam, or else they would be summarily executed.

The picture was gruesome. The Christians were told to kneel in the hot sand with a gun barrel against their heads. Two questions were asked with methodical certainty. The first question: “Are you Christian?” Safety is but a two-letter word away: “No.” You would be set free. One simple syllable, just audible enough for the interrogator to hear, would be sufficient. You know deep in your heart it’s wrong. It’s offensive to the Lord Jesus Christ. It’s cowardice. It’s a denial of Christ. He had a warning for those who would deny Him. He would deny them before the Father (Matt. 10:33). But your immediate need is to keep your brains inside your head. You think of your wife, your kids. Another one is on the way. But as you think of Christ dying on the cross for you, a stream of courage wells up in your heart. You speak one word, clearly, firmly, resolutely: “Yes.”

Then comes the next question: “Will you deny Christ and convert to Islam?” Now you have another chance to save yourself from certain death. The thought flits across your mind: “Jesus loves me. He knows self-preservation is natural, inborn. He understands. He will have compassion on me.” Your family needs you. You can tell others about Jesus. Such thoughts sound so reasonable, so compelling. Yet you know they are wrong. Jesus didn’t avoid the cross. He didn’t call upon 72,000 angels. You close your eyes and say, “No ...”

Walsh asks, “How many of us have faith like that? The Egyptian martyrs were willing to give up everything for Christ. How many of us are willing to give up anything—let alone everything?”

Is it not strange that while we in America live in relative safety and are looking for a guarantee of total safety, that revival is breaking out in many parts of the world where safety is not even a concern?

If you and I want to see revival and have power in prayer, we cannot delay obeying the Lord Jesus Christ “‘Til it’s safe to do so.”
